

Psychology Myth Busting

In a group of 2-3 students, your group will be responsible for reading and visually presenting your myth to the class.

1. Explain in further detail what your myth means
2. How your myth was started and/or spread
3. Describe the truth about your myth. In other words, why your myth is not true

Everyone must talk in your group when presenting to the class

Presentation must include:

- Every member (This means EVERYONE must TALK)
- A visual component that clearly enhances your presentation and understanding of the myth
- A clear summary of the key terms and main ideas for the rest of the class to write down in their notes

*You are expected to be taking notes during each group's presentations

Psychology Myth Busting

In a group of 2-3 students, your group will be responsible for reading and visually presenting your myth to the class.

1. Explain in further detail what your myth means
2. How your myth was started and/or spread
3. Describe the truth about your myth. In other words, why your myth is not true

Everyone must talk in your group when presenting to the class

Presentation must include:

- Every member (This means EVERYONE must TALK)
- A visual component that clearly enhances your presentation and understanding of the myth
- A clear summary of the key terms and main ideas for the rest of the class to write down in their notes

*You are expected to be taking notes during each group's presentations

Psychology Myth Busting

In a group of 2-3 students, your group will be responsible for reading and visually presenting your myth to the class.

1. Explain in further detail what your myth means
2. How your myth was started and/or spread
3. Describe the truth about your myth. In other words, why your myth is not true

Everyone must talk in your group when presenting to the class

Presentation must include:

- Every member (This means EVERYONE must TALK)
- A visual component that clearly enhances your presentation and understanding of the myth
- A clear summary of the key terms and main ideas for the rest of the class to write down in their notes

*You are expected to be taking notes during each group's presentations